who today at noon became the Governor of Pennsylvania when oath of office was administered at Harrisburg.

By William B. Brown

I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Jan. 20.—From every section of Pennsylvania officials and citizens were here today to witness Gifford Pinchot take up the reins of the office he relinquished four years ago to John S. Fisher.

Victory of the Governor-elect in the primaries last May and again in the November election proved his popularity with the rank and file of the voters of the Commonwealth, and today as many of them as could jam themselves into special trains, buses and motor cars and journey to Harrisburg were on hand to see their favorite receive the final accolade.

Because of the unusually large crowd which gathered early for the inaugural, the Governor-elect was anxious that the ceremonies be held as planned—in the open—so that the largest number of people could witness it.

Meanwhile, those in charge of the inaugural arrangements were making certain that all details of the ceremonies would move promptly as planned and taking every precaution that no last minute hitches would mar the minute-by-minute schedule laid down.

The fact that the entire public appropriation for the event was limited to $3,000 did not seem in any way to affect the throngs who swirled along the route of the inaugural parade and drifted toward the reviewing stand early this morning.

It did, however, reduce the number of National Guard units which were able to attend, but participation of officers of the State military forces and local units of the Guard promised to give a full military flavor to the event.

The fact that no public funds were available to pay the expenses of political clubs also reduced slightly the number of those organizations represented. In many an inauguration, a trip to Harrisburg was considered by political leaders as at least part pay to those who, on election day, helped get out the vote. But absence of the marching clubs and units, in numbers common in past inaugurations, did not affect others anxious to get into the line of march.

As noon approached, the carefully worked out schedule began to operate. At 10 a. m., the Capitol was cleared and the doors, guarded by State troopers, were closed to the public. After that time, only those who were to participate in the inauguration were permitted to enter the building.

Because he is commander of the 52nd Cavalry Brigade, Lieut. Gov.-elect Edward C. Shannon was to be given a military escort, the same as the Governor. Troop "I," the Governor's troop of the 10th Cavalry, was assembled, prepared to escort General Shannon.

TWO FORCES STRUGGLE FOR CONTROL OF STATE AND NATION, SAYS PINCHOT IN HIS INAUGURAL ADDRESS TODAY; ATTACKS PUBLIC UTILITIES

One Group Fights in the Open, Says Governor, While the Other Operates Under Cover—Aims to Substitute Government by Public Utilities as Against Government by the People.

By Arthur B. Donegan

I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Jan. 20.—(INS)—"Two forces are struggling for control of the governments of Pennsylvania and of the United States," declared Governor Gifford Pinchot in his inaugural address here today, launching into a slashing attack on the public utilities as he took office as Governor of Pennsylvania for the second time.

"One fights in the open," he continued, "representing the theory of government set forth in the Declaration of Independence and established by the sacrifices of our forefathers. Its central principle is the right of a free people to govern themselves."

"The other force operates under cover. It is directed by hidden powers for the advantage of a few against the interests of the many. Its central purpose is to control the government and prevent it from protecting the people against manifold extortions. What is at stake in this conflict is the continuance of that government by the people which triumphed over government by the few when America achieved her freedom."

"Here in Pennsylvania," the Governor continued, "a carefully planned, elaborately financed, and powerfully directed attack upon the rule of the people under the law has made substantial progress. It aims to substitute government by the public utilities for government by the people. It is not confined to Pennsylvania. Not a single state in the Union is free from a similar attempt."

"This attempt, the governor declared, is not fostered by Pennsylvanians but by men 'having their seat of power in another state and whose effort is part of a wider attempt to control the nation.'"

"Back of the public utilities in their attack upon our American form of government," declared the newly-installed governor, "is the whole fabric of political corruption; the underworld, the protected racketeer, and criminals of high and low degree."

"I take office," he declared, "free

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE BY SOBY POST AUXILIARY

Contest to Continue for One Month; Leaders Are Appointed

PLAN VALENTINE PARTY

LANGHORNE, Jan. 20.—Membership drive of American Legion Auxiliary of Jesse W. Soby Post, 148, for 1931, commenced last evening, leaders appointed for two groups of workers being Mrs. Warren Randall, of Langhorne, and Mrs. George Morris, of South Langhorne. Eight workers were selected to assist each of these leaders. The contest will continue for one month, ending with the February business meeting of the auxiliary.

Miss Mary Keating, South Langhorne, president of the organization, presided at last night's session. Reports from several sections, regarding welfare work attended to within the past month, were heard.

Mrs. Randall reported upon the business transacted at the Bi-Centennial Council meeting, held recently in Newtown.

A Valentine party was planned for this affair to take place on the evening of Thursday, February 12th. Members of the post and auxiliary will be invited to this affair.

Women of the auxiliary are desirous of continuing work of the drill team, members of same planning to meet on Monday evening next in the Memorial House, here.

DOYLESTOWN DOCTORS ASK FOR CO-OPERATION

Urge Citizens to Help in Present "Flu" Epidemic

RUSHED WITH CALLS

DOYLESTOWN, Jan. 20.—Physicians of the county seat have asked for the co-operation of families where there are victims of the present epidemic of "flu."

One of the medical men explained the situation this morning, saying that the time of the physicians will be greatly conserved and the sufferers given more prompt attention if calls are sent in early in the day.

"I have from 40 to 50 calls, every day now," said one physician, "and that is a great many persons to see, especially when they are in widely separated communities, some of them distant."

"For instance, I will receive—and other physicians have the same experience—calls in the morning from a distant community, and then in the afternoon or at night will receive calls from other 'flu' sufferers in the same community. That means a great loss in time, when all of the calls could have been made at the same time."

"This, of course, especially applies to the outlying districts."

"With the co-operation of the families of the sufferers this waste of time would be overcome and better service for the sick could be given by every physician."

It is said there is an extremely large number of sufferers from this type of illness at this time.

CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS ON LAW ENFORCEMENT AS ARRIVED AT BY THE WICKERSHAM COMMISSION

Opposes Repeal of 18th Amendment—Objects to Restoration of Legalized Saloon—Opposes Sale of Light Wines and Beer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(INS)—

The conclusions and recommendations of the National Commission on Law Enforcement and Law Observance with regard to Prohibition and signed by ten of the eleven members, follows:

1. The Commission is opposed to repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

2. The Commission is opposed to the restoration in any manner of the legalized saloon.

3. The Commission is opposed to the Federal or State governments, as such, going into the liquor business.

4. The Commission is opposed to the proposal to modify the national prohibition act so as to permit manufacture and sale of light wines or beer.

5. The Commission is of opinion that the cooperation of the states is an essential element in the enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment and the national prohibition act throughout the territory of the United States; that the support of public opinion in the several states is necessary in order to insure such cooperation.

6. The Commission is of opinion that prior to the enactment of the Bureau of Prohibition Act, 1927, the agencies for enforcement were badly organized and inadequate; that subsequent to that enactment there has been continued improvement in organization and effort for enforcement.

7. The Commission is of opinion that there is yet no adequate observance or enforcement.

8. The Commission is of opinion that the present organization for enforcement is still inadequate.

9. The Commission is of opinion that the Federal appropriations for enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment should be substantially increased and that the vigorous and better organized efforts which have gone on since the Bureau of Prohibition Act, 1927, should be furthered by certain improvements in the statutes and in the organization, personnel, and equipment of enforcement, so as to give to enforcement the greatest practicable efficiency.

10. Some of the Commission are not convinced that prohibition under the Eighteenth Amendment is unenforceable and believe that a further trial should be made with the help of the recommended improvements, and that if after such trial effective enforcement is not secured there should be a revision of the Amendment. Others of the Commission are convinced that it has been demonstrated that prohibition under the Eighteenth Amendment is unenforceable and that the Amendment should be immediately revised, but recognizing that the process of amendment will require some time, they unite in the recommendations of Conclusion No. 9 for the improvement of the enforcement agencies.

11. All the Commission agree that if the amendment is revised it should be made to read substantially as follows:

Section 1. The Congress shall have power to regulate or to prohibit the manufacture, traffic in or transportation of intoxicating liquors within, the importation thereof into the United States and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof for beverage purposes.

12. The recommendations referred to in Conclusion No. 9 are:

1. Removal of the causes of irritation and resentment on the part of the medical profession by:

(a) Doing away with the statutory fixing of the amount which may be prescribed and the number of prescriptions.

(b) Abolition of the requirement of specifying the ailment for which liquor is prescribed upon a blank to go into the public files.

(c) Leaving as much as possible to regulations rather than fixing details by statute.

2. Removal of the anomalous provisions in Section 29, National Prohibition Act, as to cider and fruit juices by making some uniform provision for a fixed alcoholic content.

3. Increase of the number of agents, storekeeper-gaugers, prohibition investigators, and special agents; increase in the personnel of the customs bureau and in the equipment of all enforcement organizations.

4. Enactment of a statute authorizing regulations permitting access to the premises and records of wholesale and retail dealers so as to make it possible to trace products of specially denatured alcohol to the ultimate consumer.

5. Enactment of legislation to prohibit independent denaturing plants.

6. The Commission is opposed to legislation allowing more latitude for Federal searches and seizures.

7. The Commission renews the rec-

SCOUTS DEPICT A BOY'S DREAM AT DOYLESTOWN

Annual County Council Meeting An Unique Affair

COURT HOUSE FILLED

Bristol Troops and Sea Scout Ship Participate In Program

Bristol Scout Troops Nos. 5 and 8, and the Bristol Sea Scout Ship Elks participated in the annual county council meeting, Boy Scouts of America, last evening in the Courthouse, Doylestown, before a packed courtroom.

Thomas B. Stockham, Morrisville, was re-elected president of the Council for the year of 1931.

Dr. A. J. Strathie, Newtown, chairman of the nominating committee, read the report of the committee, which was accepted as read. The report of the committee was as follows: T. B. Stockham, Morrisville, president; F. H. Clymer, Doylestown, treasurer; E. H. Lovett, Yardley, national representative; William Burgess, Morrisville, commissioner.

Proving the real spirit of scouting, this meeting was planned by men and boys and from start to finish both the officers of the Council and the Scouts from the different troops gave their reports of the past year in Scouting. This meeting was known as "A Boy's Dream." The meeting opened with words of welcome by Mr. Stockham, which was followed by a group of boys apparently engaged on a street corner gambling. Ken Shelly, Warrington No. 1, played the roll of the boy who was losing money and was being "taken in" by the other boys. After the others had "cleaned him" he fell asleep and dreamed a beautiful dream of Scouting. Ken's dream was portrayed by the officers and scouts of the council.

Clerks and Exhibition Drill, Doylestown No. 2; Funerous, Chalfont No. 1; Camporee, S. Langhorne; Scout Meets, Riegelsville; Regional Camporee and Movies. These were the first Scout activities that came into Ken's dream and were events that took place in Bucks County last year. Next came Langhorne No. 1, dramatizing the good times had at Camp Buccoon last summer. Movies by Russell Hartzel, Chalfont, and the following Civic Service events came next: Mutt Shows, Perkasee No. 1; Community Good Turn, Perkasee No. 1; Red Cross, Perkasee No. 2; Bucks County Inter-scholastic Meet, Langhorne No. 1. Next came the growth and development of the past Courts of Honor which was put on by Bristol No. 5.

E. H. Lovett, Yardley, was next in the dream with a report of the auditing committee showing the financial standing of the Scout Council. Trevoise No. 1 depicted the Doylestown Fair by lighting fire by friction, together with Yardley No. 1 which put on a rescue from a burning building.

Portraying the training methods used in the Council, the Sea Scout leaders next formed a rough outline of a ship and briefly touched on the high lights of Seascout leadership. A series of lantern slides were next exhibited by Scout Executive W. F. Livermore, Jr., which were accompanied by talks by Assistant Executives W. F. Hanner and Robert X. Perry. Judge Hiram H. Keller gave an interesting talk on the growth of the Council during which he brought out the fact that owing to the number of troops it became necessary to apply to the staff two assistant executives. These men have proven to the executive board the dire necessity of professional leadership in the field of Scouting.

The next scene showed Ken Shelly coming out of the grip and power of King Morpheme. Everything that had gone on during the evening was all "A Boy's Dream," and Ken, rubbing his sleepy eyes, exclaimed, "Gee, what a dream; I'm going to be a Boy Scout."

The concluding number on the annual council program consisted of the presentations of different Sea Scout activities by the three Sea Scout Ships: S. S. S. Robert Morris, Morrisville, portrayed the Sea Scout Base; S. S. S. Yankee Clipper, S. Langhorne, Sea Scout Regatta; S. S. S. Elks, Bristol, Sea Scout Ball.

The meeting closed with remarks from President Stockham, which was preceded by "Taps" blown by Ordinary Sea Scout F. Herman of the Bristol Sea Scout Ship.

TOLL OF THE HIGHWAYS

In spite of safety-first campaigns, lectures and editorials, and in spite of more or less vigorous enforcement of a multitude of laws designed to be remedial, the death toll from motor vehicle accidents last year was four per cent higher than that for 1929. The ghastly total was 32,500, according to the National Safety Council.

If there is any consolation or reassurance in the 1930 figure, it is in the fact that the percentage of increase was the lowest since motor traffic became a major safety problem. The 1929 toll represented a 12 per cent increase and the 1929 total was eight per cent higher than that of 1927.

Much significance is attached to comparative tables showing that states with the largest rural populations show the highest percentage of increase and that those which examine and license drivers had the best records. This analysis will exert great weight in legislative revision of motor codes this year.

Newspapers and railroad safety devices and warning signs can claim credit for reducing grade crossing fatalities last year. The press throughout the country has been hammering away at this slaughter so consistently and effectively that only the most reckless or absent-minded can now approach a grade crossing without instinctively taking some precautions. Publicity has paid.

Another gratifying gain in the field of safety-first is the saving of child life. Fewer school children are being killed by automobiles than was the case a few years ago. School patrols, education, prosecutions and police protection explain this.

BACK TO WORK

One straw may not make a straw-stick, but when five automobile factories in Detroit recall from idleness thousands of workers and add $2,000,000 weekly to their payroll, the leadership of this industry in the industrial recovery cannot be questioned.

The five Detroit automobile factories are now employing 136,000 men on a working schedule of from three to five days a week. Since the five-day week prevailed before the general lay-off and most of the men now employed are working five days, this means that operations are almost normal.

Recovery in the automotive field is vital to recovery in all fields of industry and commerce. Directly or indirectly, this one industry supplies employment for millions of people. It has come to be considered a fundamental or key industry upon whose prosperity the nation's prosperity largely depends.

Other industries are to feel the gains made by the automotive trade for every addition to the national payroll means more business for all and employment for the idle. All the economic cycle needed was a little impetus, which the automobile industry seems now to have supplied.

"FOREST LOVE" by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

After giving up Mat Tully because he is poor, Nancy Hollenbeck encourages the attentions of Jack Beamer, wealthy sportsman. Jack plans to divorce his wife and marry Nancy. On a mountain trip, Nancy falls in love with Roger Decatur, handsome ranger. She leaves her chaperones, the wealthy Porters, and secretly marries Roger. Nancy is happy with Roger in his rough mountain cabin, but when he leaves on a trip, the loneliness is unbearable and she returns home. She continues to keep her marriage a secret. Jack Beamer sends flowers. Nancy and her sister, Lou, attend the engagement party of May Belle Craig. Nancy longs for Roger. Beamer arrives and monopolizes her. Nancy repulses Beamer's advances. Lou is thrilled by Mat Tully's attentions.

CHAPTER XXVIII.
"I was a wonderful party, May Belle—a perfectly wonderful party!" Louise Hollenbeck cried.

"Why, Lou, did you really think it was a success?" Enthusiasm from Louise was rare enough to mean something. May Belle beamed upon her, and noticed for the first time what a really charming gown she was wearing. It was made of some deep purple stuff, heavily shirred and corded, that had begun life thirty years ago, as a ball dress for mama. Curtain ring earrings and two dozen brass bangles from the ten-cent store were supposed to lend the Venetian touch. Surprisingly, "Why you look beautiful!" May Belle exclaimed. Astonishment glowed on her piquant, freckled face.

Not Missed

A warm, bright blush mounted to the roots of Lou's dark hair. "Do you really think I look nice?" Her eyes searched the mirror over the buffet. Had she really looked lovely to Mat? Hadn't he missed Nancy at all? Nancy . . . she hadn't seen her for hours. . . . The bright blush faded, the strained look about the mouth and eyes came back. "Has anyone seen Nancy?" she asked nervously, looking from one to the other of the little group beginning to mount the stairs.

"Nancy?" May Belle remembered she had not seen her for hours either.

"Yes, what did happen to Nancy?" Mr. Craig mumbled, a little worried for his old favorite.

"Oh, Nancy went to bed hours ago," Mrs. Craig said comfortably. "She came to bid me good-night. She had a horrible headache. That wild dance she did was probably too much for her. . . . I thought at the time . . . by the way, whoever invited that Beamer person? May Belle, did you?"

"No, I didn't," May Belle yawned, waving goodnight to Lou, who hurried on ahead. "By the way, Mama, did you ever see Lou Hollenbeck look so nice?"

"No, I never did," her mother agreed acidly. "Of course, you know why?"

"Matthew Tully! He spent every minute with her! I don't believe he paid the LEAST attention to you—at your own party!"

"She can have him," May Belle announced magnanimously, through yawns. "I've got my Gil, the sweet thing. But Helen Heffinger will fix her. Here she got herself up like a plump horse for him and he never saw her. Serve her right; she's such a cat. I'm glad old Lou got a break . . . oh! I'm sleepy. Let's talk tomorrow. Lou! Where's Lou?"

Lou had already closed and locked the door of the room she was to share with Nancy. She stood in the darkness with her back against the door, listening, listening for Nancy's breathing. For the eight games of pinochle, refreshments were served.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

by Nancy Lee

DEAR NANCY LEE:

I have read the advice which you have so wisely given to other young girls, and I am sure that you can help me.

This is my problem: There are two boys who both say that they love me. I like one of the boys, but the other I dislike greatly. I have told him that I do not wish to have anything more to do with him. Since then he has tried to turn the boy whom I do like against me. What can I do to stop him from doing this? Sincerely, JO.

JO: You must explain matters clearly to the boy for whom you care. As for the other boy, you must let him understand fully that you wish the friendship to cease. If the boy who professes to like you is so ready to believe gossip, then all I can say is that he is easily swayed and cannot profess much success for your friendship with him.

DEAR NANCY LEE:

I am a girl 16 years old. I go to many parties, and I am with boys a great deal. My parents would much rather I entertained my boy friends at home. I have parties often, but what I want to know is how to entertain one boy when I invite him to my home for an evening. I would like to interest him, so he would want to come again. Thanking you for your advice, which I know will be good. MITZI.

MITZI: A good hostess never has reason to doubt that her guest will not be anxious to pay another visit. As no doubt you are well acquainted with the young man whom you are specially desirous of inviting, you are no doubt familiar with his mental makeup, and know whether he prefers music, dancing or just intelligent conversation. To cater to a person's preferences, to be a sympathetic listener to their conversation, to be appreciative of their hobbies and doings, is to make yourself indispensable as a friend.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Edwards and family, of Jenkintown, spent the week-end with Mrs. Edwards' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Roper, of Maple Beach.

the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Hardy, of Pond street.

Girls Don't Change-- But Names, Oh My!

—How Many Nellies Do You Know Today?

This And Other Old-Favorite Names Have Gone the Way of the "Follow-Me-Johnny" Curl and Bronze Slippers, Says Winifred Black, but Girls . . . ?

By WINIFRED BLACK.

WELL, what do you think, Nellie's coming to pay us a visit.

I've never seen Nellie in my life.

I knew her mother and her aunts and two of her uncles a long time ago, when we all took the first wildflowers that grew in the hollow of the hill to teacher, and were jealous of the one who brought the biggest bunch of the little pink anemones and wind-flowers that were so hard to find.

In the Fall we all took a red apple a day to teacher. I wonder what she did with them? She couldn't possibly have eaten them all, though there used to be whispers that Teacher's married sister, with whom Teacher lived, was not a very good provider.

Nellie's mother married a farmer and went way out into the country to live, and she was so busy raising chickens, ducks and children, and setting eggs and skimming cream and making great pans full of doughnuts and big fragrant loaves of brown gingerbread that she didn't have much time to write.

So I don't know much about Nellie's mother. But I am crazy to see Nellie just the same.

I wonder if she has her mother's blue eyes or her father's brown ones, and does she stammer just the least little bit as her mother used to do when somebody teased her about the brown-eyed boy who sat in the next seat to her?

But the principle reason I want to see her is that her name is Nellie. I haven't seen a Nellie for years and years.

I thought there weren't any more Nellies, didn't you?

And what has become of the Minnies and the Sallies? And, oh, Mamie! Where did you go—you and your Langtry bangs, and your hairnet, and your hairpins and your pull-back and your sailor hat?

And there was Mayme, too. Mayme was quite a dashing creature. She wore "follow me, Johnny" curls and bronze slippers, cut out over a blue lining, and she carried a blue parasol with scallops around the edges.

What ever happened to Jennie? There are plenty of James nowadays, but not a Jennie in sight.

Lily has disappeared, too, and as for Kitty, I dare you to find a Kitty in your whole list of acquaintances. Katherine, oh, yes! Plenty of Katherine's, and maybe one or two Kates, but Kitty—why, the very ideal!

Jose's gone, too, and so has Mattie. Poor Mattie, she's Martha now.

I met her at a luncheon the other day, and she told me she had buried Mattie seven years ago and put a headstone at the head of her grave, and on it she had engraved "Little Mattie—glad, so young."

"And I buried Matt seven years before that," said Mattie.

"I suppose I'll bury Martha some day, and turn into Marta or something else foreign and exotic."

Maggie and her cousin Meg—gone with the dolmans and the jingle bells.

They're all Peg now, or Margot. And Mate. Why, I knew three or four Mates, once upon a time.

They've gone the way of the Millies and the Myrtles and the Violets. I wonder what happens to the old names, and why we are always changing them?

Well, the girls don't change, anyway, thank goodness. They look different, and they act different, but they're just the same girls under their new names and their new haircuts and their new sport shoes and their new, hygienic, scientific regime.

I'm glad of that, anyhow—aren't you?

Why Commute?

Why travel back and forth to your employment, which is here in Bristol, when such desirable dwellings are to be obtained here at such reasonable rents? It will pay any individual to investigate!

Work Where You Live and Live Where You Work.

If you are employed in Bristol you should live here. It will be less expensive and there are numerous other advantages derived from making your home in the town where you are employed.

You will save many hours a year which are now spent in traveling and you will have more time with your family.

The saving in money will also be considerable. Add to that which you are now paying for rent the amount which you spend in traveling back and forth to your employment here. You'll be surprised at the total. Rent a house here at a moderate rental and bank the difference.

Houses.

Comfortable dwellings, well situated and at moderate rents are to be found in that portion of Bristol which is immediately adjacent to the P. R. R. passenger station.

These houses make ideal homes and consist of six rooms with bath.

Conveniences.

They are heated by hot-air furnaces with a direct pipe leading to every room. They are lighted with electricity and are equipped with sewer, municipal water and gas.

Each room is well lighted and yet the space devoted to windows is not excessive.

Front porches are another attractive feature as is also a small rear yard where children can play in safety away from the perils of traffic.

Houses such as these would rent for considerably more in any city, where the conveniences would not surpass those offered here.
